Woodrow Wilson's First Defeat
And Its Influence on His Career.

Woodrow Wilson made many speeches during the years 1909 and 1910 and attracted attention wherever he spoke. His Princeton critics accused him of making a campaign for the presidency of the United States. They said his whole quarrel about democracy at Princeton was simply a vehicle for the advancement of his candidacy—a publicity effort. The anti-Wilson group inspired a series of newspaper articles along this line.

Dr. Wilson undoubtedly had an eye to the future but he was endeavoring to win his Princeton fight by building up such a prestige with the American people that his views on educational matters would carry weight with his own alumni and board of trustees. He had no thought of resigning until he won.

Suddenly in June 1910 just before the commencement exercises which were to bring alumni from all parts of the country to Princeton, there came a development which changed the whole course of affairs. Isaac Wyman of Boston had died and his will provided what was then estimated to be a gift of approximately four or five million dollars for Princeton. Of all things in the will was a provision that the fund was for a graduate college and that it was to be expended as the trustees directed—and one of the executors named was none other than Dean Andrew P. Wilson.

It was my duty as Associated Press correspondent to carry the first news of Mr. Wilson's bequest to Dr. Wilson. (Continued on page 6)

Mr. Hime has several daughters of Dorothy III and every one in milk has made a high record. Consequently Mr. Arnold is expecting good results from his new herd sire.

JUNIOR CLUB GAINS
MANY NEW MEMBERS

With around 150 new junior club members already enrolled and with most of the 1923 members again joining, the forecast that in 1924 the Rock county Junior Club will have 600 boys and girls in Junior club work is coming true. The club applications continue to come in, even though the conditions have not been so good as in the past. The club has 15 of the 20 townships. Many teachers are sending in the club papers without the schools being closed. The club committee since their appears to be no immediate relief from the snow-bound roads.

An application was received this week from the sons of Earl Boyce, Deloit, route 27, for spotted Poland China pigs. This is the first calf of this breed. Prospects for the yearling calf club, as several applications for the Swiss breed of calves have been received by Jack C. Nisbet, secretary of the club.

The bulk of the new club applications are for the new poultry and home economics clubs. SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

W. T. Hunt, Lima township, reports that his Homestead bull, Columbia Jalmar Homestead, showed last year a three-year-old, in developing well and siring a remarkable bunch of calves. The Hunt bull was consistently in fast company with the best bodied and top-line Holstein bulls shown in Wisconsin. By exercising the animal and trimming the hoofs, Mr. Hunt has remedied the show ring weakness of the sire—poor feet and legs. This fault corrected, the Homestead bull would be a worthy prospect for the blue ribbon in almost any show ring.

"SUPERIOR TOPICS"
NAME CHOSEN FOR
CHEVROLET PAPER

"Superior Topics," suggested by W. R. Walter, factory auditor, is the name adopted for the factory organ of the Chevrolet Motor company of Wisconsin, which made its appearance at the local plant recently. The name was chosen from 146 submitted because the word "superior" has been used in all advertising for the Chevrolet and also suggests in connection with the newspaper that the subjects discussed in the paper are just as the name implies.

To make it a newspaper for all of the employees a staff of reporters has been chosen. VETERAN CITY CARRIER WALKS 148,000 MILES

Some people walk for pleasure; others walk because they cannot ride; a number are required to do their business by walking, but very few people have walked 148,000 miles. That is the distance which C. J. Capelle, veteran Janesville letter carrier, has hiked in his 37 years on the job.

A. George B. Wheeler of Chicago is reported to have walked 50,000 miles in 32 years. A newspaper clipping about it started the employees of the local office to figuring. They got hold of Mr. Capelle and figured out his several routes during his service, making the Chicago man's walking look like a little stroll.

Here's another record for someone to shoot at. A. Palmer, head of Wisconsin's rural delivery men, has driven over 150,000 miles in 20 years, covering his route.

DAUGHERTY WILL QUIT WHEN SKIRTS ARE CLEAR OF OIL

(Continued from page 1.) will help himself and the republican party by not letting Mr. Daugherty resign, thus making a clean sweep with respect to all persons in his cabinet who have been mentioned in connection with the oil controversy. The oil controversy is a matter of national importance and the republican party is anxious to see him enter the campaign unencumbered. It is not that they love Mr. Daugherty less but they love Mr. Coolidge more.

The practical politicians, like John T. Adams, chairman of the republican national committee, who are fighting the republican party stand up and fight and not let more accusations stand, are beginning to believe it is time to turn the tide by a mass attack upon their political foe.

While very little has been said about it, there is a chance that the split over the Daugherty question may result in a mass attack upon the republican party.

What the republican party knows that cannot without encountering criticism let Mr. Daugherty resign without a hearing, and he has been told also that the attack on the republican party will not end with the retirement of Attorney General Daugherty, for the democrats are already talking of bombarding other cabinet members.

Under the circumstances the Daugherty logicians are saying the controversy is by no means ended with the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty.

If Harry Daugherty were convinced that he alone is embarrassing the cabinet and that a republican victory will have to be won by the cabinet, he would get out overnight, and carry his case to the country in public speeches, looking to the American public to vindicate him.

COAL LEGISLATION WILL BE SOUGHT

Measure Planned to Protect Legitimate Dealer from "Snow Birds."

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) Madison.—Enactment of legislation which will regulate the leasing of coal dealers in Wisconsin and the grading of all shipments into the state will be sought before the next legislature, according to Paul H. Prescott, coal investigator and expert of the state department of markets.

A movement for such legislation already has been started. Mr. Prescott said today, and tentative measures have been drawn up. The expert of the state department is strongly in favor of such legislation.

Would Protect Dealer. "Licensing of coal dealers is designed primarily to protect the legitimate dealer against the so-called 'snow birds' in the industry," Mr. Prescott declared.

"Wisconsin, like all other states, no doubt has a large number of illegitimate coal dealers who come into the state temporarily and dig in on business of reliable dealers.

"Numerous instances have come to the attention of the state department where patrons have purchased coal from dealers who are temporary in a locality. In a large majority of cases, such buyers find they have received a low grade coal and paid a high price for it. They have no recourse and they are unable to get adjustment from the dealer.

Must Be Established. "Licensing would require that the dealer show he is established in a community and make good his product. Grading will assist largely in insuring coal purchasers that they receive the quality of coal they desire. Under the grading plan, each load of coal would be labeled as it comes into the state and classified according to quality."

A majority of Wisconsin lumbermen and coal dealers in the state favor the proposed legislation, and a movement has been started in congress for similar federal legislation, according to Mr. Prescott, who has corresponded with Senator Walsh of Massachusetts regarding the proposed measures.

DOUBTS VALUE OF MOVIE AS TEACHER OF SCHOOL YOUTH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) Chicago.—The movie has yet to prove its effectiveness as a teacher of youth, judging by opinions expressed today by speakers before the department of superintendents of the National Education association.

The American boy and girl students are more interested in the motion picture, particularly the young, than in the education of the young, according to the speakers.

"The value of motion pictures," Prof. Freeman said, "lies more in the peculiar content of the experiments which they make possible than in their stimulating effect on the child's interest."

START WORK ON NEW CAFETERIA

Equipment Being Installed at High School for Use March 1.

With four men, employees of the A. L. Kleckhoffer company, Milwaukee, on the installation of new equipment for the high school cafeteria, everything is expected to be in place before the time limit stated in the contract. The long serving counter, extending almost the entire width of the room on the north side, adjoining the kitchen, was being put in place Wednesday, and following installation of that other equipment will be installed.

The tables and chairs, as well as counter and kitchen furniture, except the dishwashing machine, have all arrived and are piled in the cafeteria waiting to be unpacked and put into position.

Two tables of heavy wood, well varnished, are to be fitted with white tops, but the latter have not yet been taken from the shipping containers. All the legs are tipped with a white substance, similar to that of which the tops are composed, giving the whole a fine appearance.

The counter is constructed on a wood frame, covered with galvanized iron, with the "galvalite" used for the white top, as well as panels on the outside. The whole is trimmed with nickel plated trimmings, and no wood will be exposed when construction is finished.

There Is a New Man in the House

The quick action in the matter of the resignation of Dr. F. I. Drake, marks a change in the administration of the institutions of the state. There is a new man in the house, one of administrative ability and for the first time in the history of our own time, a board of control not entirely dictated by political exigency. The appointment of Mrs. Margaret Hutton Abels to succeed Mrs. Kading as a member, is one of the best the governor ever has made. It is so revolutionary and so different from his regular system of awards and punishment, that the demand must have been great and emphatic to take the governor from the stern path of cheap politics to the altitude record in decent government.

The Drake episode is but one incident having a relation to the new sense of justice which it seems to be actuating the workings of the board of control. The Gazette believes that this will have a corrective influence in the treatment of wards of the state elsewhere. The selection of Dr. W. F. Lorenz as chairman of the state board of control will also add greatly to its efficient character.

About all the new labor government has had in England is labor trouble.

The Wilson Character.

"The True Story of Woodrow Wilson," by David Lawrence in its opening chapters now running in the Gazette gives promise of being the most intensely interesting study of the dead former president yet made. In the second chapter, printed Tuesday, the attitude of Mr. Wilson toward Grover Cleveland is told. He and Mr. Cleveland had quarreled and after the death of the great democrat no mention was ever made of him by Mr. Wilson because he "loathed no praise" where in his heart he sincerely thought he could give none. It criticizes some of the newspapers which have failed to accord the dead Mr. Wilson, they appear only to have applied the rule which Mr. Wilson, according to Mr. Lawrence, had laid down for himself.

"The True Story of Woodrow Wilson" will be an illuminating study of the peculiar character which isolated the president as no other president has been separated from the close counsel of men associated with him.

Senator Staudenmayer is trying to work up a little Teapot Dome of his own here in Wisconsin in the highway department. A casual examination, however, seems to disclose only ivory.

Recent Moves for European Peace.

In spite of the pessimistic feeling of a few months ago there are additional signs of peace in Europe and many things have happened to relieve the international mind. Most recent has been the treaty between Mussolini's government in Italy and Jugo-Slavia concerning Flume and other heretofore debated questions. It settles the long dispute over Flume. While it is made an Italian city it also permits Serbia free use of the port, equal rights for railway and dock space, and the part of the city, peculiarly Slav has been returned to Jugo-Slavia. The creation of this new entente cordiale has been one of the most advanced movements for peace in the last two years. Add to this the treaties of France with Poland and Czechoslovakia and we have a cord around the German ambition to bring on another struggle which would involve the allied nations and give Prussianism another chance. These treaties are of the utmost importance for the peace of the world. They settle differences which have been growing more and more acute since the war. In many cases they have been stirred up by interested parties who would see the continent again in a condition of conflict. If we will now add an agreed refusal on the part of the United States, France and Great Britain, to lend money or supply food to any nation that would begin a war or to any and all nations at war with others, we will have a deterrent greater and more potent than all the treaties, leagues and paper covenants which claim peace as a motif.

The democratic party seems to have burglarious intent to get into the White House by using a Jimmy, either the Reed or Cox brand.

In the "Gilded Book" to Indiana written by Irvin Cobb and illustrated by John T. McCutcheon, they have perverted history by locating "where Mad Anthony Wayne licked the Indians," up in Northern Indiana. Indiana has glory enough without claiming to have been the scene of this battle which made it possible for the settlers in Northern Ohio and Indiana to go ahead in peace for a number of years. It was over in Ohio that Wayne met the big chiefs, Turkey Foot and Little Turtle, in 1795, and close to the city of Toledo gave the redskins a drubbing which they never forgot. With Booth Tarkington, George Ade, James Whitcomb Riley and an indicted governor, Indiana can get along as she is without taking glory not her own.

When Andrew Johnson dismissed Secretary of War Stanton in 1865, Stanton baricaded himself in his office and defied the president. Then he

TRACING MOVEMENTS OF FISH

By FREDERICK J. HANKIN.

Washington.—A new clue has been picked up by the American national fish detective concerning the habits and wanderings of that most elusive of denizens of the deep, the salmon. It has been known for a long time that each year the salmon disappears from its native haunts and wanders somewhere in the ocean depths, but he has kept his trail so well covered that there has been little reliable information concerning his itinerary. One thing is certain—he always returns to the place of his birth. The United States Bureau of Fisheries, like a vigilant detective, has spent years on the trail of the salmon and recently has picked up new clues. The latest has come from far-off Siberia.

In pursuit of data on the habits of the salmon the bureau makes practice of tagging specimens which have been caught and then throwing them back into the sea. A communication received from Vladivostok, the Pacific port of Siberia, reports the capture on August 18, 1923, of a salmon bearing a tag marked "U. S. B. F. No. 10358." The fish was caught on the eastern shore of the peninsula of Kamchatka, in the estuary of the Panikara river in the district of Karagin.

The fisherman who took this specimen either did not notice the small tag or paid no attention to it for it was not until the fish was sent to market, said that the tag was discovered. Agents of the Far Eastern Fishery board at Vladivostok discovered the tag. The letter received at Washington says:

"This fish, as far as we can judge in its salted state, was of the family 'Oncorhynchus keta', in all probability a male. The length of the fish is 59 centimeters, and it was in the spawning stage as it was in 'wedding dress' (changed color) and had grown teeth."

The Fisheries bureau maintains a record of the serial numbers of tags attached to fish. This makes it possible to determine when and where the creature was tagged. The fish was tagged in a salmon trap off the north shore of Ungava Island, Shumagin group, Alaska, on July 4, 1923. Ten thousand salmon were tagged by the bureau in the summer of 1923 in an effort to throw light on the movement of salmon in the sea.

This announcement reveals that in a little more than a month this salmon crossed the North Pacific ocean. There is no means of knowing how long the trip required because it is not known to the place of its birth for the spawning season. The Siberian communication says the fish was in its "wedding dress" when caught. Furthermore it was caught in a river. Salmon swim chiefly in the open sea but go up the rivers to spawn. These facts would tend to show that the fish was spawned in Siberia and had merely come to American shores in the course of its natural wanderings, returning to its Siberian home for the next spawning season.

The Fisheries bureau pronounced the discovery of the fish as "of great interest." It has long been realized that salmon make very long trips from home, but little reliable data have been available as to just how long these voyages were. It is expected that before long more tagged salmon will be returned and the bureau at Washington advised. By compiling this data as it comes in the bureau ultimately will be able to determine the extent of the wanderings of the salmon.

In the summer of 1923 a great many fish of various sorts were tagged by the bureau of fisheries. The Halcyn, a vessel of the fisheries service, tagged a total of 10,245 fish of New England. These consisted of 7,619 cod, 2,215 pollock and 411 haddock. They were caught and tagged and then released at Nantucket Shoals, No. Man's Land, Chatham and Stellwagen Bank—all important New England fishing grounds.

By the end of January 1924 the 10,245 fish had been recaptured and identified. These recaptures showed that, unlike the salmon, the cod, pollock and haddock are not wandering fish. All of them were taken in New England waters with the exception of a few which were caught off the coast of New Jersey. A single fish was caught as far north as Portland, Me.

All of the recaptured fish were cod excepting a dozen pollock. Most of them were caught in the month of October. A study of the places where the fish were tagged and of the locations of their recapture indicates that there was a considerable slight southward migration of cod in the autumn, but not, however, so extensive a removal as to take them out of New England waters.

The bureau maintains an expert along the winter fisheries of Long Island and New Jersey to gather information of the catches and to disseminate data among the fishermen.

A more accurate knowledge of where the fish go at different times of the year is expected to be of aid to the fishing industry. The boats will know where to go at certain seasons to bring in the heaviest nets. Much of the lore of fish is being passed on by the old fishermen of the coast already. This has been passed on from generations of experience in the business. But it is confidently believed that science can add to the lore and the bureau devotes considerable effort to the task.

One of the most interesting studies now being carried on is of the progressive disappearance of the rock sturgeon. The sturgeon is one of the most valuable of fish. American waters used to teem with them, but in the last fifty years they have almost entirely disappeared. Caviar, considered one of the most luxurious of edibles is produced from the sturgeon. The fish is a large, lazy creature which, especially at the spawning season, swims slowly and makes its surface in small streams. Its slow movements make it easily caught. These facts and the high prices paid for caviar and sturgeon oil caused rapid depletion of the species.

The bureau of fisheries has made investigations indicating that, unlike almost all other fish, the sturgeon does not spawn every year but has a longer reproductive cycle, and favors drastic state in protecting the sturgeon from fishermen. If this is not done it is likely that the species may become entirely extinct in American waters.

arrested the man appointed by Johnson to succeed him. It was all a very interesting time and Stanton remained until he got ready to quit. Perhaps Mr. Daugherty has been reading history.

We know spring is here. Twice already the Kansas peach crop has been utterly ruined.

The Providence Journal says the king cobra snake will attack everything it meets. "Somebody will name him Pat Harrison, after the Mississippi senator."

Sinclair evidently expected this to be a magic teapot.

Senator La Follette withdraws from North Dakota because he does not think they are shooting the right kind of hell fire out there to melt the Coolidge snow.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WEATHER.
 The weather is a thing which we could never do without. It's something all society can safely talk about.

It has no friend to answer back or to tell you how to deal with it. No one your judgment will attack. If you should call it foul.

If of the weather you should tell The very worst you know, And prove your dreadful tale as well, No further would it go.

No eager gossip, hearing you, Would hasten to repeat The scandal you had started to The neighbors down the street.

No little woman's face would pale, No wounded man reply That you had crushed him with your tale Or stabbed him with a lie.

So when to gossip you're inclined, When something you're abused, The weather, not your fellow kind, Is always safe to use.

HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1924

This day of the month should be very lucky, according to astrology, for Saturn and the Sun are in strongly benefic aspect, while Neptune and Mercury are but mildly adverse. Labor now comes under a direction of the stars that promises power, honor and government. The dominant industry is to have new honor and work is to be dignified as never before.

Saturn is in a place which promises for wage-earners places in the Sun and they are to gain greatly in financial influence.

There is a sign indicating that much misconception and misunderstanding is to attend great social and economic changes, which the stars foreshadow.

Mercury is an aspect from which the seers prophesy that newspapers and magazines will be filled with discussions regarding industrial progress that menaces the old order of things and undermines thrones.

Those who follow astrological prophecies will recall that five years ago the coming of a new era was announced and this had been foretold for decades previously.

The year 1924 is to be marked by startling events in the world which will bring the passing of an old order of things disturbed by the war, but done away with by later progress and necessary readjustments.

The United States is to reflect strongly a European revolution which will be bloodless and scarcely recognized until its effects are apparent.

According to the seers Americans are to be blind to world conditions, even though they pretend to be blind, and they are to be overtaken by sudden, unexpected exigencies.

One of the signs of perilous times will be a strange sense of loneliness which causes men and women to seek companionship and this will be the cause of much unhappiness.

The Moon today is in Capricorn and the influences encourage dealings with officials, bankers, and high executives of every sort. Metaphysics and occult studies are well directed at this time, but warning is given that many failures will follow.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the nuptial of a very successful year. Those who are employed are likely to be promoted. The young will court and marry.

Children born this day probably will be very lucky in whatever they undertake. These subjects of Pisces are usually ambitious and successful. Romantic marriage is indicated for girls.

I got in the house through a side window, all right, but there I stuck because he was in the kitchen with Dolly. Sparkin' her, the old hunk. Well, I been waiting for the right room for fifteen minutes getting a cramp in every leg, and about ready to call it a day, because Top he wasn't showing any signs of dragging it, when Charlie Shale and Bill Derr came bustling into the kitchen. They hadn't more'n got in when the girl yelled at Bill to go back, and then Top Sawyer grabbed her round the waist and swung her right through the doorway and slammed the door."

"That's an odd number!"
"Ain't it, I tell you. Top was one surprised jigger when he got that door open. I had to hush. Right in my arms. He couldn't have done it better if he'd meant it. I was so surprised I hardly had some enough to lock the door and use the bowie. But I used it. Yop, plumb center."

"You'll be sorry. Stopping a woman's clock thataway unless you post a five hundred to is bad business. You'll see."

"What is this—a sermon?"
"Give it any name you like."
"Tell you, Sim, she knew too much."
"What more did she know that she didn't know a while back? At while, look you, said yourself her testimony wouldn't be worth a whoop because we could make her an accessory. What particular thing did she know?"

"It's no use explaining. You be satisfied."
"I ain't satisfied. Not for a minute. Remember, I warned you, Sim. You saw that door on our trail, my gun to-night and dropped the pair of them, only—"

"Only you knew you'd never get out of town alive if you did. You do have the glimmering of a brain now and then. Why not cultivate the glimmering?"

"So, vilifying each other, they rode through the night."

"Almost home," said Pap: "we sure pulled out of it neat as pie."

"We ain't home yet, Sim pointed out darkly, more to re-buke Pap than because he believed they would not reach home without mishap."

Pap directed attention to the coming down. The sky above was dark blue, shot with great, spoke-like bands of light, shooting up from behind the eastern ridges. The night was fast departing, but there was still a soft blurring of color values. Objects at the distance were not distinct. The grizzly track they were following at a rocking lope (there was no longer necessity to save their horses) was a dull gray-brown with here and there patches of dead black where the earth showed through the coarse lush grass. Lush, for it was swampy ground, and the trail was bordered by thickets of alders, willows and red, out of whose low growths occasionally shot the straight slender trunks of young tamaracs.

Dull gray was the color of the trail, and dull gray is the color of a well-used rope. Which was why neither of the riders saw the rope that had been laced three times across the trail at a height nicely calculated to throw a horse.

Side by side the two ponies stuck their forefeet into the lacing of rope, and side by side they went down smash on their chins. It was Pap who catapulted over his horse's head and landed on his stomach with such force that the breath was knocked from his body, but the essentially bad luck was Sim's. His flying form was halted by the bole of a tamarac tree, and he fell a senseless heap of chaps and spurs, on the blanket of last year's needles at the foot of the tree.

callers pronounced. I think I had named even the remotest constellations for them, and was congratulating myself upon the outcome, when one of the younger members of the party interjected:

"But, as it has never been proved that stars are inhabited, how do the astronomers ever find out their names?"

A clergyman was called upon to conduct the services at the funeral of a man with whom he had had no acquaintance. So, thinking to glean a useful hint or two touching the deceased's character, when he was shown into the living-room the minister called a little boy of eight, evidently a member of the family, and put to him this question:

"Can you tell me what were the last words of your father?"

"He didn't have no last words," responded the boy with the utmost naivete. "Ma was with him to the last."

A salesman bought the only remaining keeping car space. An elderly lady next him in line in front of the ticket window burst into tears.

"I must have a berth on that train," she exclaimed. "It's a matter of life or death!"

The salesman gallantly sold his reserved seat to her, and yet, when his wife was astonished to receive the following telegram from her husband:

"Will not arrive until tomorrow. Gave berth to an old lady last night."

Home-made Remedy
Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's clean, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the heaviest, fastest, chesty cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant to children like it is pure and good.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with a fine granulated sugar syrup. Or use sirup molasses, honey, or corn sirup, instead of sugar sirup, if desired. This you make a full pint, family supply—but cut down to more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better than Pinex. It gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly breaks the inflamed membranes that cause the cough and soothes your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes. To avoid colds, take a small bottle of Pinex with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction. Write for a free trial. The Pinex Co., E. Wayne, Ind.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

WEIGHT When a mother asks me now she can tell if her child is being underfed or overfed, the invariable answer is that one can tell only by the weight. Weight at the different periods of a child's life is a most important indication of its development.

The average child, without serious illness, will double its birth weight in five months and nearly triple it in a year.

The child who is overfed will make a tremendous gain in weight for a short time and then he will stop and remain stationary. He will not show any appetite for food and regularly will lose part of his body weight for a short time. This is not the indication to give more food, but to lengthen the feeding intervals and to weaken rather than strengthen the formula. If the baby is bottle fed.

Mothers are quite prone to rectify think that I ought to be able to get there as fast as I can, but I have never met him. How could I get acquainted with him?

It seems to me that you ought to be allowed to attend school entertainments since you are a Junior. Of course you are rather young to be so far advanced in school, but since you are and the social side of school life has its value too, it seems to me a mistake to keep you away. Your parents, however, have a right to decide this matter, and without a doubt they believe they are acting for your good. Do not argue the matter much. Study hard and be obedient, and then when a party takes place ask them again to let you attend.

It is not necessary for you to have an introduction to a schoolmate. When you see the boy on the street, speak as you would to any of the other boys at school. If he is interested he will make an effort to further the acquaintance, but if he is not, there is nothing for you to do.

HE WAS MARRIED. Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to a young man who has been going with me for three years. He seemed to be a nice boy.

The other day I received a letter from his wife. I was so surprised when I heard he was married and had a home to keep.

He came to see me and I showed him the letter. He threw it at me when he saw the handwriting. For he knew who it was from. He denied being married, but I wouldn't let him come to see me any more. I still love him and know he loves me.

Do you think it better for me to tell the girl about him or not? Please tell me, as I am anxious.

CORRIED WITH. First, let me take for your courage and principle, both in showing the young man the letter and in refusing to see him any more. Do not tell the young woman he is now deceiving. That would put you in a very false light. However, she could be and has been a capable of real love, apparently. He is entirely unworthy of even your merest thought and you are too fundamentally fine to waste time on him.

HEARTBROKEN: You need legal advice. If you consult a lawyer, there are so many points of importance in a case like yours, that I cannot be of help to you. A lawyer could tell you how much of a case you have and how much of a crippled husband and your interfering neighbors.

Beauty Chats

THE OVERWORKED WOMAN For all modern conveniences I believe there are many over-worked women in the world today as there were a century and a half ago when the light came from hand-dipped candles instead of from an electric light push button, and the men's clothes as well as the women's were woven and made at home. I am sure that women do as much work now as they did then, but in a different kind of work, and this fact today is for the frankly over-worked woman.

She hasn't much time, in fact she hasn't any time to spend in beautifying herself, but if she wants to keep her looks she will find them hints valuable and easy to follow. She should make up part of some time and keep in her bathroom or kitchen a bottle containing one-third lemon juice, one-third glycerine and one-third rosewater. If she can't afford rosewater, plain boiled water will do. When she washes her hands at the end of her work a little of this rubbed into the skin before she finishes drying them will keep them soft and white and do away with most of the stains. A little jar of petroleum jelly, or even plain lard, should also be kept handy, for some of this rubbed into the palms of the hands will keep the skin from getting yellow and horny.

Sweeping and dusting and bending over and kneeling on the floor will ruin the hair, but it takes no extra time to cover the head with a cap. If it is an ugly cap it will make the woman herself look ugly. If it is a nice looking cap it won't.

Neighborhood News---

By Fontaine Fox

THE SYNTHETIC VOLCANO WAS FINISHED THIS WEEK AND BECAME ACTIVE ALMOST AT ONCE, AND CREATED QUITE A STIR IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD.

I don't mean by nice looking something full of frills and lace, which is out of place on a woman doing housework. I mean something in plain dark material with an elastic in back to make it fit snugly to the head, and perhaps a cuff turning back from the face for becomingness.

Housework is hard on the complexion, but it takes less than one minute by the clock to rub cold cream or olive oil or lard into the skin after you have washed it with soap, leaving the skin clean and soft. It takes no time to rub oil or lard into the hands just before washing them.

Discouraged M. H.—If your hollow cheeks are the result of poor health, you can fill them out best by building yourself up. A good body massage cream would help, of course, but the real answer is to improve your health. You possibly need a fattening diet.

Betty Jane—Never mind about the plump neck and arms as you are still very young and undeveloped. If you take good care of yourself, after a few years of growth, you will be in correct proportion, and likely with very good lines.

You can wear brown, greys and blues very well. If you want to create an effect of color in the cheeks, try flesh pinks and rose.

Janice—Have the doctor remove the wart on your neck.

Tomorrow—Spring Tonics

ROCK PRAIRIE

Rock Prairie—The following spent the week-end at their homes here: Elizabeth Lamb, Sherryan, Belle, Mattie Lamb, Madison; Agnes McLay, Whitewater; Maude Howarth, Madison; Mrs. D. J. McLay is visiting her daughter, Marion, who is teaching in Antigo. She will also visit her daughter, Mrs. H. H. Humphrey, Wausau; Robert Barless and D. J. McLay attended the Little International at Madison.

FULTON

Fulton—The Milton Y. M. C. A. boys defeated the Fulton younger Y. M. C. A. boys at Fulton Tuesday night, 21-6. Mrs. O. P. Murwin is hostess.

Gertrude Mack, Beloit, spent the

WOMAN AILING FOR A YEAR

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Happy Results

Newcastle, Pa.—"I was all run-down and everybody thought I was going into a decline. I had been ailing for a year with pains in my right side so that I could hardly stand on my feet. When I was told that I was ailing, I felt as if something was falling. I was not able to do any work and had a nurse most of the time. She spoke to me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I gave it a fair trial. Some women think one bottle should cure them, but I did not stop at that. I took more and got better and am able ever since to do my own housework. There was a time, when I would complain of not feeling well, that my husband would say, 'Go to the doctor.' But now he will tell me to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's, and it has always helped me. I have had druggists tell me that they had something better, but they don't tell me that now, for I take no other. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound now for five years. Any man who cares to call or write, I will be glad to tell her how it helped me."—Mrs. MABEL LEST SHERBURN, 615 Newell Ave., Newcastle, Pa.

DEVELOPMENT OF PLAY SPACE URGED

Brown Says Individuality of Present Day Youth Should Be Brought Out.

"The tragedy of youth is that we fail to harness that tremendous urge of adolescence to achieve, to be in the limelight," said V. K. Brown, Chicago park recreation executive, to an audience of representative community leaders at a meeting in the high school Wednesday night. Those present listened with intense interest for an hour and half while Mr. Brown analyzed the objectives of community recreation in the light of many years' experience as director of playground and park activities.

Make Use of Leisure.
"We have learned," said Mr. Brown, "that the assumption that spare time is going to be of social value, isn't true unless we make provision for its proper uses. Professional entertainment places, a premium on spectatorship. We have learned that we must do more than make up to the city dweller what he lacks in the way of opportunity for outdoor life. We have learned that merely providing a wholesome place to play does not combat the spiritual infections of child life. The big moments in all our lives come to us through a sense of personal achievement, the consciousness that once in a supreme moment we stood the test and came through victor. We started out by awarding medals in athletic events to the fellow that won, without taking into the consideration how he won, or the fact that the number that may win in such events is comparatively small."

Discusses Scoring System.
The speaker discussed at some length the scoring system applied to all events conducted under his direction in 14 parks. Under this plan 20 points are allowed for winning a game or contest, 50 points for sportsmanship and conduct, 20 points for reliability.
"Despite all our culture," he said, "we are not achieving self-mastery. The thing that adds up in our community life, in our national life and in our relations with other nations, is not ignorance but weakness, the lack of practiced strength to do the thing we know all too well we ought to do. Compulsions do not develop self-control.

"We must find ways to provide the channels through which individual ability to achieve may be realized. Thus in the south park system we have developed many activities and events that do not come under the head of athletics. Through kite tournaments, paper tower shows, lantern parades, and similar activities we afford the child with creative ability a chance to achieve. A little crippled boy won enough points in one kite tournament to carry off the banner for his park, after the athletes had failed to come through. This little boy who had always been on the side lines cried for joy when the athletes carried him about on their shoulders. It is the thousands that are on the side lines for one reason or another to whom we must somehow give an opportunity to achieve recognition for the particular thing that each can do a little better than anyone else. The fraternity of achievement should be made big enough to afford recognition for all types of self-expression."

E. S. Lamoreaux presided. Miss Hordis Hanson, music supervisor, gave a talk on the class of the music memory contest in the city schools. She said that the contest is a feature of the course in music education which has for its objective the popularizing of good music by making it familiar. Three of the contest numbers were presented. Miss Phyllis Luchinger played "To a Water Lily" on the piano. The senior girls' glee club sang "All Through the Night" and "Who is Sylvia."

Twenty-four community leaders met Mr. Brown at a dinner conference in the high school demonstration dining room preceding the lecture. The dinner was served by home economics students under the direction of Miss Stadler. St. Patrick's day table decorations were used. Those present were: City Manager Henry Traxler and Mrs. Traxler, A. J. Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Atwood, Mr. John Fitzsimond, Mrs. E. J. Manning, Mrs. Helen Sutherland, Mrs. David Holmes, H. S. Haggarth, H. S. Lovejoy, J. M. Vorrans, E. S. Lamoreaux, Stephen Holmes, E. E. Khorst, J. A. Steiner, J. P. Hammarlund, William McNea, J. P. Baker, Mrs. Florence S. Hyde, Misses Gertrude Cobb, Mary Mouda, Agnes Grant and Eunice Nelson.

Wit of Arctic
Not All Frozen
in This Lecture

The highest priced man on the lecture platform with one or two exceptions is Vilhjalmur Stefansson, foremost Arctic explorer of the times. He will be in Janesville at the high school auditorium on next Monday evening, March 3. Stefansson amazed the world when he started on his last polar trip by taking no account of supplies and making no such great preparations as had always been thought necessary. He proved he could live off the Arctic for five years. Stefansson is an icebreaker, born in that island to the far north, and came to America as a child, being reared on a prairie of North Dakota. He is a university graduate, was a professor in Harvard, a man of daring as well as culture. Highest honors of geographical societies have been conferred upon him for his contributions to the knowledge of the world.

Stefansson's lectures are not of the dry as dust order. They are intensely interesting and entertaining and filled with humor.
